

MINISTERS FAVOR
THE PRESENT LAW

Local Association Favors One Day of Rest in Six for Employees of Postoffice.

AMENDMENT IS PROPOSED

Petitions Will be Circulated Among Congregations and Forwarded to Congressman Dixon.

Resolutions were adopted by the Seymour Ministerial Association this morning endorsing the Sunday closing law for postoffices and making vigorous objection against the proposed repeal of the regulation. The law provides that clerks, carriers and employees of postoffices of the first and second classes shall not be on duty on Sunday and where the needs require employment on that day that the employees shall be given compensatory time on one of the six days following the Sunday on which they are required to labor.

A communication sent the Ministerial Association by the secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance states that there is grave danger of this regulation being seriously modified and the ministers here and elsewhere throughout the country have been requested to assist in preventing such a change. The ministers were asked to get the men of their congregations to sign a petition asking that the regulation be left as it was passed. The amendment provides that compensatory time for Sunday work shall be allowed on one of the thirty days following the Sunday instead of one of the six days following the Sunday after such work is performed.

The objection is filed upon the ground that postoffice employees are entitled to one day of rest in six and that it would be an injustice and hardship upon them to be compelled to work thirty days without rest. Employees all over the United States have filed objections to the proposed amendment and desire that the regulation be unchanged.

The local Ministerial Association took a stand against the amendment and also decided to circulate petitions among their congregations urging that the amendment be voted down by congress. The petitions will be sent to Congressman Lincoln Dixon at Washington to whom they are addressed.

The petition reads as follows:
"We the undersigned respectfully petition you to vote against section 6 of the Bill H. R. No. 12,928, introduced by the House of Representatives February 4, by Mr. Moon, for the reason that we believe the compensatory time clause in the Act of August 24, 1912, which grants compensatory time to postal employees on one of the six days following the Sunday on which they perform such service, should in proper justice to the employees remain there. And we believe that in matters pertaining to one day of rest in seven our Government and its various departments should set the most perfect example possible."

The communication quotes Postmaster General Barleson commending the efficiency of the post office clerks and suggests that aside from the moral right involved the employees because of their faithfulness are entitled to one day of rest in seven instead of one day in thirty.

The petitions are in the hands of the ministers and will be circulated at once so they can be forwarded to Congressman Dixon at the earliest possible date.

MRS. MARK WILLIAMS DIED
SUNDAY AT INDIANAPOLIS

Underwent Operation Several Weeks
Ago—Funeral Will be Held Here
Tuesday Afternoon.

Mrs. Mark Williams, formerly of this city, died at Indianapolis Sunday about noon after an illness of several weeks. She underwent an operation at an Indianapolis hospital in January and never recovered. Her condition was critical for several weeks before her death occurred.

Frank Voss, a local funeral director, received word of Mrs. Williams' death Sunday and went to Indianapolis to take charge of the body. The remains arrived in this city this afternoon at 5:30 and the funeral will be held from Voss' Chapel Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. R. Boech, pastor of the St. Paul church. Burial at Riverview.

The deceased is survived by her husband, Mark Williams, who was formerly engaged in the insurance business here.

CITY CLERK JOHNSON HAS
ISSUES 195 DOG LICENSES

Reasonable Time Will be Given Owners to Purchase Tags Before
Dogs Are "Arrested."

One hundred and ninety-five dog licenses had been issued by City Clerk Albert Johnson at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon which number is thirteen more than were sold during the last year. Trade has been lively in license tags during the last few days and about fifteen were sold today. The clerk's office was kept open Saturday night after 6 o'clock and twenty-five licenses were sold at that time.

None of the dogs without the new tags have yet been "arrested" but the police department expects to begin its work at an early date. A reasonable time will be given all owners to comply with the ordinance before an effort is made to hold any dogs for the delinquent fees.

By United Press.
Scranton, Pa., March 2—Two thousand persons attending the special services conducted by Evangelist Billy Sunday at a tabernacle near here, were marooned over night by the heavy snow storm. The heavy drifts prevented the trains from running. The Evangelist fed the multitudes with sandwiches. Two persons died during the night from exposure.

The entire eastern coast is tied up today by the big snow storm. The railroads into New York are blocked by drifts and trains could not run. Hundreds of trains are held up near New York and the city is isolated from the outside world. The telephone and telegraph wires are down having been broken by the sleet and snow.

COMMISSIONERS IN REGULAR SESSION

Vincennes Bridge Company Awarded
Contracts For Four New Bridges.

CONCRETE ROADS' PETITIONS

Attorneys Representing Persons Interested Appear Before the Commissioners.

Attorneys representing the petitioners and those opposed to the construction of the concrete roads in this township appeared before the county commissioners today at their regular session. E. P. Elsner represented the petitioners and Albert Kasting looked after the interests of the opposition.

After the matter was presented to the commissioners the petitions were taken under advisement and a decision will be announced later. The opponents to the petitions asked that a special election be held in the township so the voters could decide whether or not the roads were wanted.

The commissioners awarded contracts for five new bridges. The Vincennes Bridge Company was given the contracts for four of the bridges, three over the Rider ditch and one over the Smart ditch. These drainage ditches were recently constructed and the bridges were needed at certain highways. The fourth contract, for the construction of the Sidney bridge, was awarded to Albert E. Hull.

Other routine business was before the commissioners. The session will not be completed today.

ASKS REPUBLICANS TO VISIT
THE STATE HEADQUARTERS

Chairman Hays Says Work of Committee in Coming Campaign
Has Already Started.

The Republican state committee under the direction of Will H. Hays, state chairman, has started the work of the coming campaign. The Republican headquarters at Indianapolis are open continuously during the day and all Republicans are given an urgent invitation to visit them.

Chairman Hays has issued the following notice:

It is our purpose to have the Republican State Headquarters open and the work of Republican organization and Republican publicity go forward without a break during the entire term of this Committee.

You will realize the importance of this and the far-reaching effect such an undertaking will have. This is to be no spasmodic effort we are making, but a large, determined, vigorous movement, in season and out of season, for the renewed success of the Republican Party,—all that "no harm may come to the Republic." I want all the Republicans to know that for two solid years their work will be going on, and I want them to know that they will be expected to visit the Headquarters, not only during the coming campaign but every time they are in Indianapolis for the next two years.

SPECIAL PRIMARY IS LATEST PLAN

Contest for Nomination for Prosecutor is Carried to Democratic State Committee.

UNDERWOOD SCORED POINT

Decided That Successful Candidate
Must Receive Majority Vote in the Two Counties.

As a result of the decision of the Democratic state committee Saturday relative to the contest for the nomination for prosecutor between J. Ross Robertson, of Brownstown, and John H. Underwood, of Bedford, the already complicated situation is more entangled, twisted and snarled than ever before and doubtless some bitter feeling will result before the candidate is selected. The manner of deciding how the nomination should be made was taken before the state committee by agreement with the hope that the difficulty could be amicably adjusted and while a plan was approved it is far from satisfactory to the Robertson faction.

For some time Robertson and Underwood have been unable to determine how the nomination should be made. Robertson declares that the candidate receiving the largest number of votes in this county should be entitled to the full delegation from that county. There are twenty delegates in Jackson county and seventeen in Lawrence county. Robertson's friends believe that he will be able to carry this county and under the full delegate rule he would receive the nomination as Lawrence has but seventeen delegate votes.

Underwood, who is the prosecutor at the present time, thought that the candidate receiving the majority or plurality vote should be declared nominated. The local committees, because of misunderstandings and disputes were unable to decide the question and it was left to the state committee. After hearing the various arguments the committee agreed on Underwood's plan and set April 4 as the time for holding a primary in both counties. This primary will be held especially for the nomination of prosecuting attorney.

Robertson says that Underwood agreed that Jackson county should nominate a prosecuting attorney at the same time the primary for the other offices were held, March 5, and upon this agreement the ballots were printed. The ballots bear the names of both Underwood and Robertson. Since the decision of the state committee it will be necessary to reprint the ballots and the names of the candidates for prosecutor will be omitted.

The question of the election of delegates in Lawrence county was left to C. P. Butler, county chairman. Underwood asked for a primary but the chairman refused to issue the call. Underwood then secured the names of twenty-two of the thirty-three precinct committee of Lawrence county asking for a primary. Butler refused to recognize the petition. Underwood says Butler's refusal to call a primary in that coun-

SOCIAL SERVICE LEADER
WILL BE HEARD IN SEYMOUR

Dr. Samuel Zane Batten, of Philadelphia, Will Speak at First Baptist Church Tuesday Evening.

The place the church should have in the social service of its community will be the theme of an address at the First Baptist church of this city Tuesday evening, March 3, at 7:30 o'clock. The speaker will be Dr. Samuel Zane Batten, of Philadelphia, who is in charge of the Social Service work of the Baptist denomination. He is making a ten days' tour of Indiana under the auspices of the Indiana Baptist Brotherhood. His closing engagement will be at Seymour Tuesday evening.

Rev. Chas. L. Graham, pastor of the First Baptist church, has heard Dr. Batten speak. He commends him as a man with a virile message that should be heard by everybody interested in the church's work in the community.

Dr. D. L. Thomas, pastor of the First M. E. church, knows Dr. Batten very well as both men were pastors at Lincoln, Nebraska, at the same time and were close friends. He speaks very highly of Dr. Batten both as a man, and as a man with a message that is worth hearing. Dr. Batten is enthusiastic in his work and should be heard by everyone interested in the welfare of our community.

Dr. Batten must leave for home on the 8:47 train, so it will be necessary to begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

There is no admission charges for the lecture and everybody is invited and urged to hear him.

SMALLPOX SITUATION AT BEDFORD GROWS SERIOUS

Secretary of Board of Health Closes
Churches and Public Assemblies for Two Weeks.

Because of the prevalence of smallpox at Bedford, Dr. H. Voyles, secretary of the city board of health, has served notice that for the next two weeks all church services, motion picture shows and public assemblies will be discontinued. Parents have been asked to keep their children at home to prevent a further spread of the disease. By many citizens the situation is viewed with alarm and they commend the action of the secretary of the health board.

Quite a number of homes in the north part of the city have been quarantined and it is urged that children be vaccinated as a preventive. If the situation continues to become more grave it is quite likely that a pest house will be established and those under quarantine will be removed to those quarters where they can be watched more carefully. As a result of the public quarantine the city of Bedford is quiet and no one is visiting the city unless compelled to do so to take care of business.

CONNECTING THE MAN AND THE JOB
New National Movement to Aid the Unemployed.
THROUGH LABOR EXCHANGES

These Would Eliminate Difficulties of Both Work Seekers and Employers. Problem of the Idle Calls For Solution Regardless of Whether the Times Are Good or Bad.

A constructive program to combat unemployment—such is the slogan of the first national conference on employment. This is the first concerted effort which the United States has made to combat the national problem of what to do for the man without a job.

The Association on Unemployment, which is working in affiliation with the American Association For Labor Legislation, proposes to make this work permanent rather than periodic, and to do this it proposes a definite program which includes two main features—the "regularizing" of the so called seasonal industries and the establishing and knitting together of public employment bureaus into a national system of labor exchanges.

England—in fact, all Europe—has been forced to face this problem of the unemployed, and it is doing so through the labor exchange.

The New York Times publishes an interview on this subject with John B. Andrews, secretary of the Association on Unemployment. Mr. Andrews has been investigating the question of unemployment in the United States and abroad since 1910.

Wage Loss of $1,000,000,000.

"United States census figures for 1900," says Mr. Andrews, "show that in that year over 6,000,000 working people—that is, nearly a fourth of all those engaged in gainful occupations in this country—were at some time of the year out of work. Of these some 3,000,000 lost from one to three months each. On the basis of $10 a week this represents a loss in wages of approximately $200,000,000. The figures from the 1910 census are not available yet.

"Two million of these 6,000,000 were employed in trades where four to six months' work was lost, representing a total wage loss approximately $500,000,000, while some 700,000 were idle for from seven to twelve months in the year—a wage loss approximately again of $300,000,000.

"This brings the wage loss occasioned by lack of employment to a total of $1,000,000,000 for a single year.

"Even in prosperous times we have mills closing down and advertising that workers were not to be had. At the very same time in other parts of this country men are tramping from shop to shop looking for work. There has been no place to which they might apply for trustworthy information concerning positions open in any other part of the country. Even if there had been they would in most cases not have had the money to get to the jobs that wanted them—the jobs they sought in vain.

Exchanges in Nineteen States.

The first step in the organization of the labor market is not only the systematic supervision of the local, commercial, private employment bureaus. There must be something which reaches further than that—something which enables employer and employee to get reliable information, not only from different parts of the city or the state, but different parts of the whole country. This institution is the system of public labor exchanges, which not only collects information from the regulated private agencies, but establishes a chain of free employment bureaus.

"The public labor exchange under state control has already been provided in nineteen states and twelve municipalities of the United States.

"Of course," concluded Mr. Andrews, "the employment bureau is to be for both men and women and absolutely no fees are to be charged. The department of agriculture furnishes information without cost. That is the function of the labor exchange—the furnishing of information."

A NEW BICHLORIDE CURE.

Calcium Sulphite and Potassium Iodide Form a Coating in Stomach.

Robert McKean was discharged as cured from Fordham hospital, New York, recently, after being treated for a week after taking fifteen grains of bichloride of mercury by mistake.

Dr. Dolan and Dr. Ahearn, who had charge, used a new treatment, which may change the whole system of curing for such cases. They gave the patient calcium sulphite in four and five grain doses and potassium iodide in doses ranging from five grains up to thirty. The albumen of eggs was also administered.

The result was the formation in the stomach of an iodide of mercury, which, with the bichloride of mercury, made an insoluble substance that the system could not absorb.

Fortune Far Exceeds That of Any Other American—Andrew Carnegie Is Second—Estimated Revenue Under the New Law Is $30,000,000 In New York City Alone.

W. K. Vanderbilt	2,500,000	150,000
Thomas F. Ryan	2,500,000	150,000

Reports to the effect that John D. Rockefeller would file his income tax statement in New York and make that state his only legal residence in the future, thereby adding some $6,000,000 to the sum paid through the new law in New York alone, has brought out the fact that the New York income tax collectors will handle more than $30,000,000 a year.

Close friends of Mr. Rockefeller's have learned that he will make his home in the future at his estate near Tarrytown, N. Y. This has always been his favorite residence, but he has spent a part of each year at his Cleveland home for the sake of Mrs. Rockefeller. Recent actions of the Ohio tax commission in seeking to establish his legal residence there, however, have displeased Mr. Rockefeller and are said to be responsible for his decision to quit Ohio for good and pay his enormous tax in New York. An estimate places his income at about $100,000,000 a year, of which the government's share of 6 per cent would be $6,000,000. This is, without doubt, the largest individual tax that will be collected.

Information which the New York Herald has received from a reliable source is that Mr. Rockefeller is fighting the valuation of $900,000,000 placed on his property by the Ohio commissioners on the ground that, while he might at one time have had that much property, most of it has been given away. He has given large sums to charities, education and the Rockefeller foundation.

Carnegie Down For $900,000.

Next to Mr. Rockefeller Andrew Carnegie will feel heaviest the weight of the income tax law. Estimates place his fortune at $300,000,000, yielding an income of $15,000,000 a year. The tax on this will be $900,000. There is some difference of opinion whether William Rockefeller may not have to pay even more than this, as some estimates place his income at $20,000,000 a year. In which case his tax would be $1,200,000. This estimate, however, is regarded as rather high, and $800,000 is believed to be nearer to the assessment which will be imposed upon him.

George F. Baker comes next, with an estimated fortune of $100,000,000 and an income of $5,000,000, which will cost him $300,000. William A. Clark will probably be asked to pay about $240,000 on a fortune of $80,000,000. The estate of J. P. Morgan, estimated at $75,000,000, will pay $450,000.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman will have to pay a tax of about $210,000 and Mrs. Russell Sage $200,000. Vincent Astor's tax will be in the neighborhood of $225,000, as will also that on the Jay Gould estate. Mrs. Hetty Green escapes with $180,000.

1,000 ACRES IN SUNFLOWERS

Mixed With Other Seed, It Is Good For Chicken and Hog Feed.

L. C. Phillips will plant 1,000 acres of his southeast Missouri land in sunflowers this year as a further demonstration that this plant can be cultivated with profit on land where other crops may not thrive so well. Phillips, who owns approximately 4,500 acres, half of which is in cultivation, has been experimenting for several years in the culture of sunflowers, whose seed, when mixed with other seed, makes excellent chicken and hog feed.

Last year following the flood he planted nearly 100 acres in sunflowers. The cost of planting and harvesting is about $6 an acre, he says, and the returns from $35 to $48.

PUBLIC WORK FOR WOMEN TODAY
Many Positions Are Now Open to Them.
SALARIES THEY MAY EXPECT

Requirements in Special Training and Aptitude That Form Basis of Success. Points to an Address of Exceptional Interest Delivered Before University of Wisconsin Students.

That more and more public positions are now open to women is an acknowledged fact. The appointment of Dr. Katherine B. Davis as commissioner of corrections is perhaps, says the New York Post, the most signal example of the recognition of the ability of women in administrative positions, but while the average woman does not perhaps aspire to be appointed the head of a city department, she may cherish hopes of having a part in public affairs. Edith Shatto of the health department of Milwaukee, addressing students assembled at the University of Wisconsin on this subject, said:

"With the ever increasing interest of people in civic and political efforts, and in their demand for the better and wider administration of public funds, knowledge of sociological and economic subjects is demanded in a large variety of public positions. Though there can hardly be said to be a demand for women as yet in these positions, there is a very definite place for women in the filling of which they can be of infinite service to the public.

Places For College Women.

"There is at the present time a very distinct place for college bred women in public affairs. The university training gives one a broad point of view, a more balanced judgment, and the ability to meet people.

"If the college girl is looking forward to going into relief work for the poor or investigation of working conditions or trusteeship of institutions the emphasis should, of course, be placed on sociology. If she is going into labor investigation or into statistical work in municipal research departments or railroad commissions the emphasis should be placed on economics. In both there should always be a good course in statistics, and courses in political science should not be neglected. If a girl is going into a health department or into health work good courses in physiology, bacteriology and chemistry are exceedingly valuable. Of course if she is going into some technical department, such as a bureau of chemistry or a bureau of bacteriology, she must take technical courses in these studies.

"After she has finished college the wisest thing to do is to go to one of the good schools of civics and philanthropy to get an opportunity for practical experience under direction. The demand for graduates of these schools who show ability is so great that a position is practically assured.

"If one is unable to get such training one may get experience by doing volunteer or semi-volunteer work for charitable organizations.

"In addition to the training I have already mentioned, a knowledge of stenography and typewriting is very valuable. Furthermore, business experience is invaluable. After all, it is liking people which will do more to make a girl successful than any other one thing.

Salaries Paid to Women.

"The salaries for public positions, on the whole, are about as good as one gets elsewhere for the same kind of work. I believe most women's position are underpaid at the present time for the kind of service rendered. For instance, $1,800 a year is, with a few exceptions, the highest salary that any woman is paid in public positions. Julia Lathrop, director of the children's bureau at Washington, is one exception. Women are doing work for $1,800 a year of the sort for which a man of less ability receives $3,000 a year. The highest paid woman in the bureau of labor, who has charge of the woman's division and all the investigations relating to woman's labor, is paid a salary of $1,800. She gets in addition $3 per diem whenever she is outside of Washington, which brings up her salary considerably. The usual good salary in state positions is $1,200 a year for a woman or at most $1,500. In municipal positions $1,500 a year is considered a high salary.

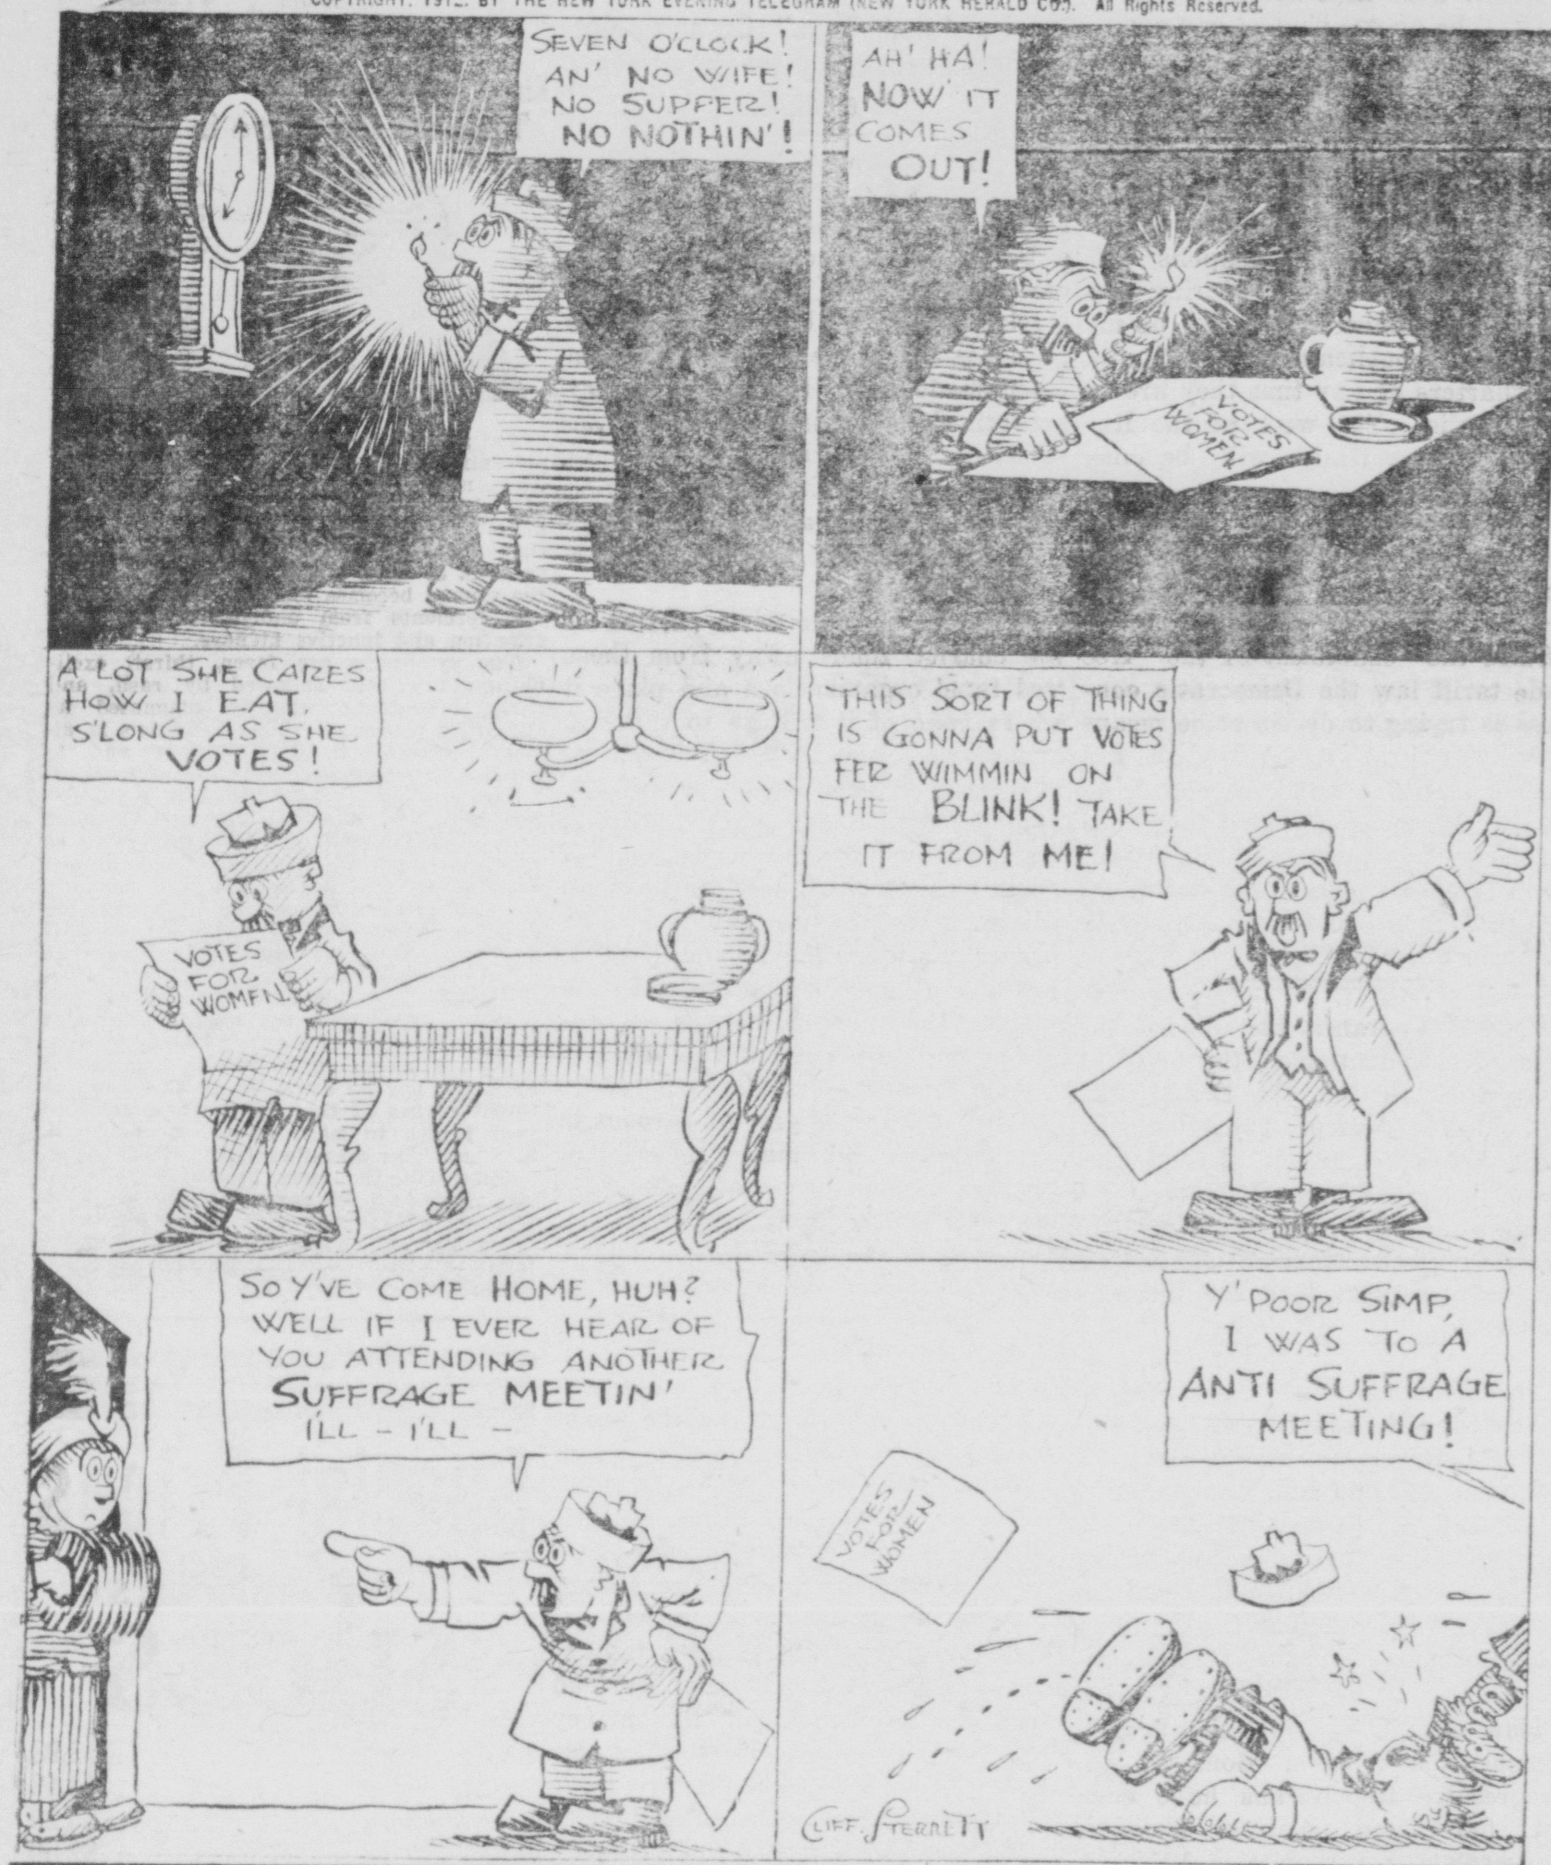

"The public today needs men and women who have a vision—a vision of ideal conditions—conditions where men and women and children, particularly children, have a fair chance for a decent and useful life. These ideals may never be reached, but a trained, practical woman who will devote the best years of her life to public service may bring them much nearer than they are today."

Scientific Loafing.

"Chess, checkers and whist are marvelous inventions," says the philosopher of folly. "They enable a man to waste his time and still have the feeling that he is accomplishing something intellectual."—Cleveland Leader.

GIVES SECRETS OF OCEAN FLIGHT

Low Altitude Must Be Kept,
Says Lieutenant Porte.

IS CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

British Pilot Would Depend Upon Navigator's Observations to Maintain Course—Finding Longitude Most Difficult Problem, but Not Insuperable, He Thinks.

Lieutenant John C. Porte, R. N., retired, whose services are sought as the British pilot of the Rodman Wanamaker transatlantic flier, regards the problem of flight across the ocean as one to be solved largely by the resources and methods of navigation. Flying at a comparatively low altitude enters into his ideas on the subject as a necessity. In this view Lieutenant Porte agrees with that already expressed by Lieutenant John H. Towers, U. S. N., on the general subject of sea flight.

The British aviator, whose reputation for daring as well as prudence was made as a member of the Royal Flying corps, gave utterance to his opinions on ocean flying after a luncheon with Glenn H. Curtiss, R. D. Gash and Sumner R. Hollander of Mr. Wanamaker's staff at the Aero Club of America in New York.

Lieutenant Porte is of sturdy physique, probably five feet ten inches in height. He faced a volley of questions with composure. In appearance the possible candidate for the role of an aerial Columbus, says the New York Herald, is the typical young Briton of athletic type who might be placed in the heavyweight class.

Special Instrument Devised.

Asked if he believed transatlantic flight practicable, Lieutenant Porte replied, "I certainly would not think of attempting it if I did not feel confident of success."

As to making astronomical observations from an aeroplane in flight to determine its position, he declared that he considered it entirely practicable. "Getting our latitude," he said, "will be the easier problem. Finding the longitude will be more difficult, but it will be done. For this purpose a special instrument is being made. It is a sextant which enables the navigator to dispense with observing the horizon. Its new feature is a plumb line of special construction."

"We want fair weather," he said, when asked as to the possibility of gathering ideas as to the direction and force of the wind from the clouds. "The time to make the flight is when there are no clouds in sight."

Importance of Observations.

"Do you count much upon taking observations to determine the position of the aeroplane?" was asked.

"It counts nearly everything," replied the officer.

Lieutenant Porte said that the drift of the aeroplane from its course due to pressure of the wind on one side or the other could be estimated approximately by watching the surface of the water. It would be impossible to do this at a high altitude, was his conclusion.

PLEA FOR GRAY HAired MEN.

Barring Them From Work One of World's Tragedies.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York city, resident commissioner of industrial relations, has made public a letter from George W. Crossett, seventy-eight years of age, of Cleveland, O., who has a scheme for aiding gray haired men who are unable to find work.

Mrs. Crossett is honorary president of the Young-Old Men's association of Cleveland and told of a movement started recently by several elderly wealthy men of the city.

"Elderly men who have been laid aside only because their hair is gray are entitled to some consideration," he writes. "We in Cleveland have organized an association to help this class find work, and we have between 200 and 300 names on our books. We have found places for sixty already, where they are earning a living."

"The men are trained in their line and yet are kept from positions because of their gray hairs. The story of the gray haired man, strong, able and willing to work, denied even a hearing because he is old, is one of the world's tragedies."

FRAUD EVIDENCE IN BABY'S TRUNK

Where Terre Haute Marked Ballots Were Hidden.

A WOMAN GIVES TESTIMONY

Corroborating What Her Husband Had Testified to Regarding the Marking of Ballots, Mrs. Edward Whistler Told the Jury That the Marked Ballots Were Concealed Behind Door in Her Baby's Trunk.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 2.—Seemingly dealing directly with the principal points at issue, much evidence was brought out in the trial of William Huffman, charged with committing an election fraud.

Mrs. Edward Whistler corroborated much of the testimony given by her husband, Edward Whistler. She testified her husband and a Mr. Paige had been at home marked ballots, which she said were hidden in her little baby's trunk. The trunk, she testified, was placed behind the dresser in her home.

John C. Schneider, a printer, who furnished the election supplies, testified that the official ballots were counted five times before they were wrapped into packages and delivered to the election commissioners. Frank Regan, Progressive member of the election commission, testified that he was present practically all of the time the ballots were being counted, wrapped and sealed by Schneider.

Special Prosecutor Roach, on the witness stand, identified the election supplies as those of Precinct D of the Seventh ward that were delivered to the grand jury by City Clerk Moorhead.

Roach's identification of the returned ballots precipitated a bitter legal fight and the controversy was continued for more than an hour. Special Judge Blankenhacker ruled that the state had the right to introduce and count the returned ballots as well as the voted ballots before the jury. The counting of these ballots, which practically means the checking up of Huffman's work as election inspector, was done before the jury, it is believed.

Saloon Keeper Beaten to Death.

Crown Point, Ind., March 2.—John Mitsch, proprietor of a saloon and restaurant at Cedar Lake, near here, is dead of wounds suffered when he was beaten, the police say, by men whom he had refused liquor. Three men are in the county jail here awaiting the action of the coroner.

Caught in a New Engine.

Greensburg, Ind., March 2.—Dolph Bennett, forty years old, was killed when he attempted to start a new gasoline engine in his feed mill at Adams, near here. Bennett was caught in the big wheel and thrown against the wall of the building, death following within a few minutes.

The Attraction.

"Miss Skyline appears to have lost her attractiveness for the gentlemen," said one girl.
"Oh, no," replied the other; "she didn't lose it. Her father lost it on the Stock Exchange."

They Then Killed Themselves.

Hammond, Ind., March 2.—Two men shot and probably fatally wounded their wives here and then committed suicide. John Spanner shot his wife as they stood in front of a restaurant in the business district and ended his own life. Mrs. John Zapadat was wounded by her husband, who committed suicide. Both women probably will die.

Mother Withdrew Her Suit.

Evansville, Ind., March 2.—Mrs. Fannie Gordon, colored, has withdrawn her $9,000 suit against Allen VonBehren, son of a wealthy manufacturer, for the death of her son Thomas, one of three negroes killed here by young VonBehren, who is now serving a term for manslaughter in the Jeffersonville reformatory.

rites for DIXIE SHAFT IN ARLINGTON CEMETERY.

Monument to Be Bared on April 27
Will Cost $50,000.

Rapid progress is being made by the various committees of the Arlington Confederate Monument association for the unveiling ceremonies of the monument in the Confederate section of Arlington National cemetery April 27. Colonel Hilary A. Herbert, secretary of the navy under the last Cleveland administration, is president of the association.

The shaft and surmounting statue have arrived in Washington and are stored in the quartermaster's depot at Fort Myer. The shaft is in several parts, packed in heavy boxes and will be taken out of its packing until early in March, when the work of erecting the shaft will begin.

The cost of the monument will be about $50,000, although the sculptor, Sir Moses Ezekiel of Rome, contributed his work as an expression of love for the "lost cause." He once was a cadet at the Virginia Military institute. The shaft and the casting of the bronze figure cost $35,000, to which will be added $15,000 for transportation and the cost of erection. This will be paid by contributions from the several chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mrs. Marion Butler, former president of the district division of the U. D. C., has been appointed chairman of the program committee to arrange for the unveiling. When a tentative program has been mapped out it will be sent to Mrs. Daisy McLauren Stevens, president general, for suggestions.

Invitations will be sent to the leading members of the Confederate patriotic organizations. Mrs. Stevens is expected to be present with a number of her official aids. Confederate officers will be invited, together with the governors and staffs of the southern states and any surviving officers of the Confederate government. Prominent officers of the Grand Army of the Republic also will be asked to become honor guests. An invitation will be sent the cadets of the Virginia Military institute to become the guard of honor to the president general of the U. D. C. and her staff.

The Richmond Blues, the Norfolk Light Artillery Blues, the Gate City guard of Atlanta, the exclusive artillery organization of New Orleans and similar military organizations of the south will be invited, as will the southern delegations in congress.

A COLD SLEEPING PLACE

Went to Sleep on Well Curb and Froze to Death.

Connersville, Ind., March 2.—Believing that he was going to bed when he reached a well platform near the C. E. Lambert barn, five miles west of here, John Johns, forty-five years old, removed his clothing and went to sleep. Mr. Lambert found him frozen to death Sunday morning. He had rolled his overcoat into a bundle for a pillow and had hung his trousers and shoes across the pump handle.

Johns had been drinking in Connersville until late Saturday night, it is said. He informed friends that he was going to walk to the Lambert farm, where he was employed. It is supposed that he imbibed freely during the trip, as a half-empty whisky bottle was found in his coat pocket. He was a bachelor.

A HEALTHY DISCUSSION.

The general discussion among the taxpayers concerning public highways and especially their repair, occasioned by the proposed construction of certain concrete roads in Jackson township will have a wholesome effect upon the highway question even if unfavorable action is taken on the petitions. During the last few days, since especial consideration has been given the subject, the taxpayers of Jackson township have realized how little attention our roads really received. They have found that in many instances gravel is a very expensive material in spite of the great beds which can be so easily reached at White River, two miles away. They have found that there is little system in the repair of our roads and have been impressed with the fact that unless some plan is inaugurated and followed little improvement can be expected.

A review of the subject has revealed, much to the surprise of many of the taxpayers, that Jackson township is paying a large portion of the money for gravel road repairs yet only a small part of it is expended in maintaining the highways in this vicinity. The demand for better roads is constantly growing. Residents of the city, towns and rural districts are unanimously in favor of improved roads especially since such a large sum of money is collected each year for this purpose. It is evident that there is a lack of business methods, that the money has been expended carelessly and that the commissioners have worked without any definite purpose in view. Such methods would not be tolerated for a moment by any successful business man in his private business and there is no reason why the taxpayers should stand idly by and witness it in county work. The discussion relative to the concrete roads and highways in general has brought the taxpayers face to face with the proposition with the result that they are startled by the real situation. Those interested in good roads have been cognizant of the situation for sometime but have never been able to get the public interested until the last few days. A good roads meeting attended by a large number of citizens and farmers such as held here Friday was unheard of in the past, but only goes to illustrate that the question is receiving the serious thought and consideration which it merits.

With the road work under the supervision of one man, the newly appointed county highway superintendent, more satisfactory results may be expected. The principal trouble in the past was that the taxpayers were not fully informed just how much money was being expended and what was accomplished. The county highway superintendent could serve the taxpayers well by making a minute statement twice a year, or even oftener, of the exact amount of money expended in each of his districts, of the number of loads of gravel or other materials placed on the highways and the cost per load. The taxpayers are entitled to such information. In fact they not only pay the salary of the highway superintendent and his assistants but they furnish the money with which the materials are purchased. There is no reason why a detailed account should not be furnished them. The books of the county are examined by paid accountants sent out by the state board of accounts but after all the taxpayers are the real accountants.

No department of the county, township or city government can be successfully conducted without a definite plan. Every business man takes an invoice of his stock each year so that he may know the true condition of his business. If the store is conducted by a corporation, the stockholders are given an opportunity to inspect the invoice sheets together with the annual report. The taxpayers are the stockholders of a public corporation. Public officers are elected by a majority of the people as managers of the business and if they serve their offices well they, too, will make an invoice for the inspection of the stockholders. The principle is just as necessary for the proper conduct of a public corporation as for a private enterprise. Such a report as this would doubtless bring about a great improvement in our road work and could be prepared without a great deal of trouble for if the books were kept accurately such data will be accessible and can easily be tabulated.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican State Committee, has sent out a notice that the Republican Headquarters on the third floor of the Claypool Hotel at Indianapolis will be open continuously during the term of his administration and he invites all Republicans to visit the headquarters at any time they are in Indianapolis. The work of the Republican organization will be conducted without interruption from the headquarters as a part of the movement for the renewed success of the party.

Since the enactment of the free trade tariff law the Democratic congress is trying to devise some means by which rural credits may be extended. It is at least, interesting to the farmers to know that if they cannot get living prices for their products they can place good mortgages on their farms to secure money to maintain their families.

General Carranza has denied the right of examination of the body of William S. Benton, the Briton who was killed in Mexico. The denial was issued upon the ground that Mexico would deal with Great Britain rather than with the United States. It would appear that the Mexican officials do not have a great love for Wilson's policies.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald says that Albert J. Beveridge, who recently allowed his $11,000 Indianapolis home to be sold for delinquent taxes, will be a candidate for president of the Progressive ticket. The field will not be so crowded but that there will be plenty of room for him.

How sad. The idol is broken, smashed as it were. Some of the Progressive Republicans have come out flat-footed against Theodore Roosevelt for president in 1916 on the Progressive ticket. It's about time the colonel is returning from his tour.

Some of the saloonists at Indianapolis are being convinced that Mayor Bell's law enforcement promises were not all campaign talk. Quite unusual for a Mayor at the capital city to carry out his campaign promises.

The vigor of the fight among local Democrats in the contest for the nomination of prosecutor reminds one of the March lion. Quite reasonable even if it does demoralize politics in Jackson and Lawrence counties.

Some of the Jackson county Democrats have always been in favor of the segregation of state and local politics so what does the decision of the state committee in the local fight for prosecutor amount to anyway?

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan confer on the Mexican situation—Newspaper Headline.

That has a familiar ring, but the atmosphere does not seem to clarify to any perceptible extent.

Gambling in Seymour is one of the most progressive enterprises on record. The places of playing are changed so frequently now it is rather trying upon the police to keep in touch with the last move.

Huerta's statement that he will invade the United States with a million or so of soldiers and destroy the principal cities by fire shows that he has a little time for humor along with his serious deliberations.

Since the weather man has ushered in March as a lion it won't be necessary at all for him to wait until the close of the month to introduce the lamb.

The man who failed to shovel the snow from his sidewalk welcomes the warm sun. Other persons who have to use the sidewalk welcome it, too.

The receipt of corn from Argentine is another illustration of the "practical working" of the Democratic free trade tariff measure.

As the assessors started work today there will likely be a marked depreciation of all personal property for seventy-five days, at least.

Unless there is a decided change in style those Chicago women may have difficulty in reaching the polls before the closing hour.

MAYOR BELL TO ENGAGE IN PUBLIC CHARITY WORK

Decries "Red Tape" Organizations
Where Preliminary Investigations
Are Made.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, March 2.—That Mayor Bell of this city has thrown a bomb into the organized charity camp was evident today. In an interview with the United Press he gave positive voice to the intimation often made that too much money subscribed to charity goes to pay the salaries of men who begin work at 9:30 a. m. and quit at 5 p. m. Bell didn't exactly say all heads of charity organizations do this, but he knew of some who do.

"I intend to take some portion of the charity funds away from these 'red tape' organizations and place it where none of it will go to salaries, and where it can be had for immediate use in urgent cases," he said.

Mayor Bell's idea is that when a man, woman or child needs food he ought to have it at once; that when a person is out in the cold without proper clothing, he is entitled to clothing at once and a place to get warm. Delay in such cases according to the mayor, is not real charity.

"For that reason, I'm opposed to looking up the pedigree of persons in urgent need," he said. "I have appointed a committee of competent men who will be ready to act quickly, and none of them will draw a salary. When the police find a person suffering, they can 'phone a member of this committee. This man will then 'phone a grocery or a coal office or a carpenter, or clothier, and the needy family will be cared for as quickly as a delivery wagon can make the trip."

The mayor is going to use for this purpose the money obtained for charity from the moving picture shows. This money in the past has been going to the Citizens' Charity organization. Mayor Bell said he understood that $75 per month of this money was helping pay the salary of an official. This money should go to the city, he believes, because it is the city which licenses the "movies" and permits them to be open on Sunday.

"If the mayor's committee doesn't co-operate it will be a poor arrangement," said Mr. Grout, head of the Charity Organization Society, which up to the present time has had no opposition in the distribution of charity in Indianapolis. "There will be duplication," he said. "The indigent and unworthy will impose on a committee that takes no time to investigate cases. Diverting this fund to other sources will not hamper our organization, for it was a small part of our resources."

This fund from the moving picture theaters long has been considered in Indianapolis as a sort of pacifier to the city. Some doubt the motives of the show proprietors and think the gift of a small part of the receipts to charity only a means of avoiding a city ordinance, which states that all theatres and amusement houses shall be closed on Sunday. Only a small portion of the receipts finds its way to the charity fund. The rest swells the income of the stockholders. When Mayor Bell and Police Chief Perrott closed the town recently, these shows were not affected. As another means of making their position more secure, no tickets are sold on Sunday. The patron gives the entrance fee direct to the doorkeeper, and it is then deposited in the "charity box."

DINNER GIVEN IN HONOR OF I. U.'S NEW FOOT BALL COACH

New Era in Athletics Circles Formally Launched With Arrival of C. C. Childs.

By United Press.

Bloomington, Ind., Mar. 2.—Indiana University's "new era" formally arrived today in the form of C. C. Childs, the new foot ball coach. The "new era" wasn't allowed to come quietly, but was accompanied by a big delegation of alumni from Indianapolis and other points, and a big turn-out of students here. Preparations were under full sway for a "two-bit" banquet tonight at which Childs was to be the honor guest.

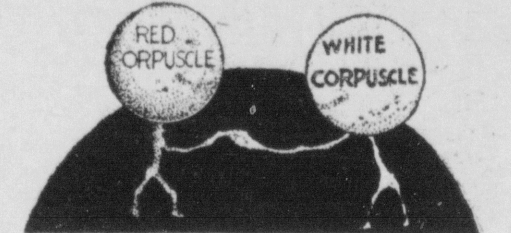

Though Childs is center of the entertainment, the moving force back the whole thing is President Bryan, who takes as much interest in athletics as any of the students. He created the term "new era" in connection with the coming of Childs as an all-year-round foot ball coach.

"There are two big ideas in Indiana university athletics that must be brought out in the future work," according to President Bryan. "First, we must encourage loyalty, and second we must establish the idea of all-year-round coaching."

At tonight's banquet Childs will be surrounded by last year's foot ball team. Speakers at the table will include prominent alumni. The idea has been to unite all elements into a warm reception for Childs.

Poisoned Blood Quickly Cleansed

In Any Form of Blood
Trouble the Cure is Rapid.

An astonishing record of serious blood poisoning is daily brought to our attention. And most if not all these startling calamities could be averted were the blood primed, toned and purified in advance by that wonderful remedy known everywhere as S. S. S. Few people realize how quickly the system becomes infected with the acids and ferments from undigested food, constipation and inactive kidneys.

The symptoms are fever, thirst, excitability, dry skin followed by rash, and many indications wrongly diagnosed as Ptomaine poisoning. This condition is almost universal in all climates and is quickly overcome by the action of S. S. S.

The medicinal properties of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well balanced health as are the nutritive properties of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food. And if you will bear S. S. S. in mind and get your blood under the dominating influence of S. S. S. you will not only drive out those impurities that cause Rheumatism, Catarrh, Eczema, Pimples, Bolls and thin anemic blood, but you will feel anew the thrill of health that can come only from a purified blood stream.

TO ASK THAT CRIMINAL COURT FEES BE GRANTED

Marion County Officials May Ask Legislature To Enact New Law.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, Mar. 2.—Crystallizing sentiment here makes it appear that formidable lobby will request the next legislature for a law allowing expenses and a fee to witnesses in criminal trials.

Judge Markey of criminal court is leading the movement, and he is backed by the prosecutors' office, Judge Deery of Police court, and Sheriff Porttens. They believe that witnesses in criminal trials should receive the same consideration as they do in civil trials and that as the matter now stands a hardship is often worked on the needy.

"When I am informed that a very poor person is to be called as a witness in a criminal case I make provisions for him," Judge Markey told the United Press today. "I have a fund here to be used for that purpose if I wish. Often, however, I am not informed concerning the finances of the witnesses, and in those cases, I fear, they suffer."

"I shall be interested in asking the next legislature to make it possible to send with the subpoena the expenses of going to the city where the trial is held, and to make it possible for the witnesses to collect a fee and expenses both while in the city and for the return trip."

Ralph McCarty, Prosecutor Baker's first assistant, said he also thought such a law would be beneficial.

"The present law which makes it possible for a person to be declared 'indigent' is unsatisfactory," he said, "because many of the very poor are too proud to take advantage of it. Also, when they are called to testify before the grand jury or in a criminal case the next day, there is no opportunity to complete the 'red tape' necessary to take advantage of that decision."

Sheriff Porttens in a recent interview said that his experience in serving subpoenas has convinced him that a hardship is done by the state in many instances. He said he intended to go before the legislature to ask that expenses and a fee be allowed.

"Often when there is a change of venue to another county or when persons are called before the grand jury from another county the hardship results," he said.

Judge Deery of Police court, who formerly was deputy prosecutor in charge of the Marion county grand jury, said that many times he had called people from northern and southern parts of the state before the jury, and that they had been forced to return to trial. "They never had any resource, but they had to come. It is an injustice even to a well-to-do person."

GALVESTON CITIZENS INVITED TO MARATHON TANGO PARTY

Municipal Affair Arranged by Mayor in Honor of Texas Independence Day.

By United Press.

Galveston, Tex., Mar. 2.—Joy of Joys! A merry, municipal, "marathon tango party" under the auspices of Mayor Lewis Fisher, and the board of city commissioners has been arranged for tonight, Texas Independence Day. The invitations are out and the entire city is invited, also encouraged, at once, with inducements of prizes for the best dancers. No admission is to be charged. The dance "hall" is two and a half miles long and 300 feet wide. Fifteen regimental bands, the pick of the second division of the U. S. army now quartered here will furnish the music. The largest tango party ever held in the expectation of the hosts.

The occasion of this party is the celebration of the completion of a newly constructed pleasure vehicle driveway, the pride of Galveston. The thoroughfare, which runs through the finest residential section, is paved with the best material obtainable, has a 100 foot esplanade that runs through to center. In this strip are palms, and tropical plants of all kinds. Double rows of gas and electric lights line each of the streets' halves.

The residents rank the new driveway with the sea-wall as an evidence of civic endeavor.

SELLERSBURG MAN GIVEN FINE IN THE LOCAL COURT

Homer Curtis Carried a Concealed Weapon—Ira Wilson Finds Some "Tanglefoot Booze."

Homer Curtis, a Sellersburg man, is convinced that it is not safe to carry a revolver in Seymour. He was seen climbing from a B. & O. Southwest freight train Saturday night by Chief of Police McCord who noticed that he had some object concealed under his overcoat. It proved to be a large pipe wrench. He was searched and a revolver was found in his possession. He pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying concealed weapons and was fined $1 and costs which were paid.

Ira Wilson, of Butlerville, came to Seymour this morning and drank freely of "tanglefoot booze." The liquor had the effect of tangling up his feet so that he had to use the entire sidewalk in walking. Chief of Police McCord saw him and Wilson landed in jail. He will appear in police court this afternoon.

Wert Woods, of Medora, was arrested for intoxication Saturday night and stayed his fine of $1 and costs.

A SUDDEN CHECK IN BENTON CASE

Expedition to Chihuahua Suddenly Recalled.

GEN. CARRANZA TAKES A HAND

Denying That General Villa Has Any Right to Treat With Mr. Bryan in Matter of Murdered Englishman, Carranza's Objections to Expedition Were So Effective That Mr. Bryan Called the Trip Off.

El Paso, Tex., March 2.—The trip of the Benton investigating committee to Chihuahua was suddenly postponed or abandoned just as the commissioners were about to take the train. Those concerned said that any explanation must come from the state department.

The commissioners, with their luggage, were at the train in Juarez when Zach Cobb, collector of customs at El Paso, informed them that they were not to go.

"It is possible that you may go later," he told them.

The commissioners are Charles A. C. Perceval, British consul at Galveston, and James Hambleton, a British subject long resident in Mexico; R. E. Thomas, a lawyer of El Paso, who has made a special study of international and Mexican law; Dr. B. M. Worsham of El Paso, and Majors W. Davidson and C. J. Manley of the United States army.

It was learned that Cobb acted on instructions from Washington. At Fort Bliss General Hugh L. Scott, who appointed Davidson and Manley to assist in the examination of Benton's body, said that he had no information. None of the commissioners would talk about the delay.

Major Davidson said that the subject was one which he could not discuss. Perceval declined to be seen. Refugees are deeply interested in the situation. Several refugees said they thought Carranza is attempting to use the Benton negotiations as a lever to obtain recognition of the rebel government.

CARRANZA ON HIS DIGNITY

Head of Revolution Upsets Bryan's Plan in Benton Case.

Washington, March 2.—General Carranza has thrown another monkey wrench into the machinery of the Wilson Mexican program. The rebel chieftain upset the plans of Secretary Bryan for the long deferred expedition to Chihuahua, where Villa says the body of Benton may be examined for evidence as to how the British rancher met his death.

Objections on the part of Carranza to the plan arranged with Villa, his supposed second in command, for the American expedition caused Secretary Bryan to cancel the trip just as the commissioners were assembling at the Juarez railroad station to go to Chihuahua. The state department is now retracing its steps and endeavoring to obtain Carranza's consent for the commission to depart.

Carranza's objection is that he is chief of the revolution and that arrangements for such an expedition as Mr. Bryan plans must be made through him. This objection follows up an earlier note received at the state department in which Carranza declared his dignity as "chief of the revolution" compelled him to refuse to recognize the right of the United States to act as the agent of England in looking after the interests of England in the Benton case.

To say that the administration is disgusted with the new turn in events is putting it mildly. That Carranza will answer to the latest representations of the United States by reiterating what he said in his note, that he will deal only with England and not with the United States, is expected here.

The result will be, it is said, that the expedition to get Benton's body will be subjected to delay, if not to total abandonment.

Imprisoned Bankers Sued.

Pittsburg, March 2.—The Farmers Deposit National bank of Pittsburg has entered suit against Henry Reiber and John Young for $1,105,000, embezzled from the bank in 1908. Reiber was a paying teller and Young the auditor of the institution. They are now serving penitentiary terms for the embezzlement.

George Free of Nasty Charge.

New York, March 2.—William R. George, founder of the George Junior Republic at Freeville, has been acquitted of the charge that his conduct with young girls at the institution was immoral.

Brookville, Ind., March 2.—Wade Ernest was found guilty by a jury and was sentenced to the state prison for from one to eight years for robbing the saloon of Frank Moninger of this place.

HAYWOOD ACCUSED OF EXAGGERATING THINGS

Philanthropists in New York Denounce I. W. W.

New York, March 2.—Big Bill Haywood's organization, the I. W. W., is deliberately and systematically exaggerating the plight of the unemployed, organizing bands of professional beggars and bums for street demonstrations and viciously misrepresenting the attitude and efforts of Mayor Mitchell, Charities, Commissioner Kingsbury and philanthropic individuals or organizations that are striving to assist the needy or homeless.

The I. W. W., for the sole purpose of discrediting city officials and labor officials and stirring up ill feeling, is magnifying the number of unemployed in this city and is distorting real conditions.

These charges are made by Commissioner Kingsbury, Herman Robinson of the executive committee of the State Federation of Labor; Daniel Harris, president of the state federation; Walter Owens, assistant superintendent of the municipal lodging house; Alexander R. Golden of the Brotherhood Welfare association; Dr. J. C. Day of the Labor Temple, and others whose efforts to mitigate the condition of the deserving unemployed are constantly opposed and ridiculed by the Haywood organization.

Their investigations have proved that a large part of the following of Frank Tannenbaum and other I. W. W. agitators—the following that Tannenbaum plans to lead to the churches of Fifth avenue when it grows to 5,000 or more, he says—is composed of men who would refuse to work under the most favorable conditions and who have been told by I. W. W. agitators that they can get money without labor if they will adopt the I. W. W. methods of noisy demonstrations and of accusing all employers and officials of oppression and callousness.

Inquiry has shown, also, that the number of unemployed has been exaggerated because of duplications of the lists in employment agencies.

INFERNAL MACHINE IN MAIL

Man Blown to Pieces When He Opened Suspicious Package.

Sullivan, Ill., March 2.—Fred Menrich, a gasoline stove repairer, died from injuries received when he opened a box which he had received by mail from Decatur, containing explosives. One arm was blown off and other injuries received on his body.

The house was badly wrecked. The box containing the explosive was received through the postoffice. Menrich is parted from his wife, who is in Springfield, and she is under arrest. It is thought that she can give information as to who sent the package.

Menrich was suspicious of the package when it arrived.

The HOLLOW of HER HAND

by GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

A WOMAN'S overpowering obsession for revenge upon the snobbish, aristocratic family of her murdered husband prompts her to shelter and protect the girl who had made her a widow so that she might finally drag down the family name by bringing about the marriage of her husband's brother with the girl who had taken a life with justification; thus, in lie the destinies of an exclusive family and a beautiful girl. Undoubtedly the best story ever written by the popular author of "Graustark," "Brewster's Millions," "Truxton King," and many other successful novels.

A story that is intensely dramatic with a plot unique beyond the ordinary.

ALLEGED FIXING OF PRICES OF BUTTER

Elgin Board of Trade Is Under Investigation.

Chicago, March 2.—The prospective dissolution of the Elgin board of trade by government order or through voluntary action by the board of directors of the organization, was hinted when it became known that the present federal grand jury had listened to witnesses in relation to alleged fixing of butter prices.

The Elgin board of trade is the defendant in a dissolution suit brought by the government, and hearing in the case has been set for tomorrow before Judge Landis. The principal allegation is that through its quotation committee the board arbitrarily fixed the price of butter in violation of the federal law. Since the pendency of this suit the activity of the quotations committee has been eliminated.

The federal grand jury, it is understood, has directed its attention to the allegation that price fixing has still been effected through the medium of alleged wash sales or transactions fictitious in reality, but bearing the appearance of actual sales.

DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED

Many Names Secured in Hunt For Goshen Gamblers.

Goshen, Ind., March 2.—Four detectives from a Chicago agency have spent much time here in investigating alleged wholesale gambling in pool-rooms, cigar stores and private quarters. Developments are expected when the circuit court term opens. The detectives, it is said, have obtained the names of from 175 to 200 persons directly or indirectly involved. Several signed statements have been made.

Bloomington, Ind., March 2.—Following the local option election in Bloomington which resulted in a victory for the "drys," the officers of the city declared their intention of stamping out every "blind tiger" in the city and county and of clamping the lid down tighter than it has ever been before.

FALLS DOWN ON SHIPPING TRUST

Too Big to Be Dissolved, Admits Committee.

WATCHFULNESS IS THE WORD

Pointing Out That So Intricate and Far-Reaching Are Ramifications of the Trade Lines That Any Attempt to "Bust" Combine Would Cripple Business, Committee Recommends Commerce Commission Control.

Washington, March 2.—Domestic and foreign shipping of the United States is so combined by agreements, pools and conference arrangements that an attempt to dissolve the combinations would cripple trade.

This is the conclusion reached by the house merchant marine and fisheries committee in the final report of the so-called shipping trust investigation. The committee, after two years of exhaustive inquiry, recommends that both foreign and domestic shipping combinations be placed under the strict control of the interstate commerce commission and that if necessary the commission be enlarged to care for the additional work.

The final recommendations of the committee, embodied in the fourteenth volume of its report, just compiled, set forth that shipping lines in practically every trade route from or to United States ports are operated by agreement or conference to restrain competition.

The report declares that the advantages accruing to both shipper and ship line through these agreements are so great that the combinations should be allowed to continue under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission as to rates, classification, rebates and discriminations. It would be futile, the committee states, to attempt to restore competition by ordering existing agreements terminated.

The report deals with 800 foreign and domestic navigation companies and 200 railroad lines.

LESSON OF THE ELECTION

Connersville Saloonists Will Apply It in Their Business.

Connersville, Ind., March 2.—Following their recent victory here, in which the city went "wet" by a majority of 450, the saloon keepers held a meeting and announced their intentions of conducting their places strictly in accordance with the law. They say that they received the great majority only because of the lawful manner in which they had operated their saloons during the last three years. During that time not one proprietor of a saloon was convicted of illegal sales. A fund has been raised to prosecute all who violate the law, the liquor men declare.

Movement to Eliminate Murphy.

New York, March 2.—The meeting of the state Democratic committee being held here today will bring about the elimination of C. W. Murphy as state leader. At a conference held yesterday by Governor Glynn with such men as W. F. McCombs, chairman of the national Democratic committee, and William C. Osborne, arrangements were completed for the election of Mr. Osborne as state chairman. His election means the reorganization of the state committee and the accomplishment of plans which are expected to strengthen the Democratic party in the state.

Schooner Wrecked on Rocks.

Providence, R. I., March 2.—The four-masted schooner Jacob S. Winslow was wrecked on Black Rocks, off the southeastern shore of Block Island early Sunday morning. The crew of nine men was safely brought ashore in the boat of the Block Island life-saving crew. The Winslow was owned in Portland and was of 910 gross tonnage.

Righted Himself in Time.

Santa Barbara, Cal., March 2.—While looping the loop here Sunday Lincoln Beachey lost control of his biplane and fell 1,600 feet, but managed to right himself 400 feet from the ground. He escaped with slight injuries. His machine crashed into a tree, but was not much injured.

Students Held Blameless.

Mt. Vernon, Ia., March 2.—Four Cornell college students were relieved by the coroner's jury here of all blame for the death of Howard Manning. A bullet fired by one of the students to frighten Manning, who had been caught peeping into the windows of the girls' dormitory, killed him.

Swept Over Precipice.

Chable, Switzerland, March 2.—Three Swiss Alpine climbers were killed Sunday while ascending the Rosa Blanche peak. The men, roped together, had attained a height of 5,000 feet when an avalanche swept them over a precipice.

Pierre and Gabriel Salvez, brothers, were killed at Lyons, France, while making an experimental flight in an all-metal monoplane of their invention.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Voice From the Past.

Though the doctor left the church with Shirley and her mother, he did not drive to Rosewood, but to his office. There, alone with Mrs. Dandridge while Shirley waited in the carriage, he unlocked the little tin box that had been the major's, and with the key Mrs. Dandridge gave him, and put into her hands a little packet of yellow oiled-silk which bore her name. He noted that it agitated her profoundly and as she thrust it into the bosom of her dress, her face seemed stirred as he had never seen it. When he put her again in the carriage, he patted her shoulder with a touch far gentler than his gruff goodby.

At Rosewood, at length, alone in her room, she sat down with the packet in her hands. During the long hours since first the little key had lain in her palm like a live coal, she had been all afire with eagerness. Now the moment had come, she was almost afraid.

She tried to imagine that letter's coming to her—then. Thirty years ago! A May day, a day of golden sunshine and flowers. The arborgs had been covered with roses then, too, like those whose perfume drifted to her now. Evil news flies fast, and she had heard of the duel very early that morning. The letter would have reached her later. She would have fled away with it to this very room to read it alone—as she did now!

With unsteady fingers she unwrapped the oiled-silk, broke the letter's seal, and read:

"Before you read this, you will no doubt have heard the thing that has happened this sunny morning. Sassoon—poor Sassoon! I can say that with all my heart—is dead. What this fact will mean to you, God help me! I cannot guess. For I have never been certain, Judith, of your heart. Sometimes I have thought you loved me—only—as I love you. Last night when I saw you wearing my cape jessamines at the ball, I was almost sure of it. But when you made me promise, whatever happened, not to lift my hand against him, then I doubted. Was it because you feared for him? Would to God at this moment I knew this was not true! For whatever the fact, I must love you, darling, you and no other, as long as I live!"

When she had read thus far, she closed the letter, and pressing a hand against her heart as if to still its throbbing, locked the written pages in a drawer of her bureau. She went downstairs and made Ransom bring her chair to its accustomed place under the rose-arbor, and sat there through the falling twilight.

She and Shirley talked but little at dinner, and what she said seemed to come winging from old memories—her own girlhood, its routes and picnics and harum-scarum pleasures. And there were long gaps in which she sat silent, playing with her napkin, the light color coming and going in her delicate cheek, lost in reverie. It was not till the hall-clock struck her usual hour that she rose to go to her room.

"Don't send Emmaline," she said. "I shan't want her." She kissed Shirley good night. "Maybe after a while you will sing for me; you haven't played your harp for ever so long."

In the subdued candle-light Mrs. Dandridge locked the door of her room. She opened a closet, and from the very bottom of a small haircloth trunk, lifted and shook out from its many tissue wrappings a faded gown of rose-colored silk, with pointed bodice and old-fashioned puff-sleeves. She spread this on the bed and laid with it a pair of yellowed satin slippers and a little straw basket that held a spray of what had once been cape jessamine.

In the flickering light she undressed and rearranged her hair, catching its silvery curling meshes in a low soft coil. Looking almost furtively about her, she put on the rose-colored gown, and pinned the withered flower-spray on its breast. She lighted more candles—in the wall-brackets and on the dressing-table—and the reading-lamp on the desk. Standing before her mirror then, she gazed long at the reflection—the poor faded rose-tint against the pale ivory of her slender neck, and the white hair. A little quiver ran over her lips.

"Whatever the fact," she whispered, "you and no other as long as I live."

She unlocked the bureau-drawer then, took out the letter, and seating herself by the table, read the remainder:

"I write this in the old library and Bristow holds my horse by the porch. He will give you this letter when I am gone."

"Last night we were dancing—all of us—at the ball. I can scarcely believe it was less than twelve hours ago! The calendar on my desk has a motto for each leaf. Today's is this: 'Every man carries his fate on a ribbon about his neck.' Last night I would have smiled at that, perhaps; today I say to myself, 'It's true—it's true!' Two little hours ago I could have sworn that whatever happened to me Sassoon would suffer no harm."

"Judith, I could not avoid the meeting. You will know the circumstances, and will see that it was forced upon me. But though we met on the field, I kept my promise. Sassoon did not fall by my hand."

She had begun to tremble so that the paper shook in her hands, and from her breast, shattered by her quick breathing, the brown jessamine petals dusted down in her lap. It was some moments before she could calm herself sufficiently to read on.

"He fired at the signal and the shot went wide. I threw my pistol on the ground. Then—whether maddened by my refusal to fire, I cannot tell—he turned his weapon all at once and shot himself through the breast. It was over in an instant. The seconds did not guess—do not even now, for it happened but an hour ago. As the code decrees, their backs were turned when the shots were fired. But there were circumstances I cannot touch upon to you which made them disappear—which made my facing him just then seem unchivalrous. I saw it in Bristow's face, and liked him the better for it, even while it touched my pride. They could not know, of course, that I did not intend to fire. Well, you and they will know it now! And Bristow has my pistol; he will find it undischarged—thank God, thank God!"

"But will that matter to you? If you loved Sassoon, I shall always in your mind stand as the indirect cause of his death! It is for this reason I am going away—I could not bear to look in your accusing eyes and hear you say it. Nor could I bear to stay here, a reminder to you of such a horror. If you love me, you will write and call me back to you. Oh, Judith, Judith, my own dear love! I pray God you will!"

She put the letter down and laid her face upon it. "Beauty! Beauty!" she whispered, dry-eyed. "I never knew! I never knew! But it would have made no difference, darling. I would have forgiven you anything—everything! You know that, now, dear! You have been certain of it all these years that have been so empty, empty to me!"

But when the faded rose-colored gown and the poor time-yellowed slippers had been laid back in the haircloth trunk; when her door once more unbolted, she lay in her bed in the dim glow of the reading-lamp, with her curling silvery hair drifting across the pillow and the letter beneath it, at last the tears came coursing down her cheeks.

And with the loosening of her tears, gradually and softly came joy—infinitely deeper than the anguish and sense of betrayal. It poured upon her like a trembling flood. Long, long ago he had gone out of the world—it was only his memory that counted to her. Now that could no longer spell pain or emptiness or denial. It was engoldened by a new light, and in that light she would walk gently and smilingly to the end.

She found the slender golden chain that hung about her neck and opened the little black locket with its circlet of laureled pearls. And as she gazed at the face it held, which time had not touched with change, the sound of Shirley's harp came softly in through the window. She was playing an old-fashioned song, of the sort she knew her mother loved best:

Darling, I am growing old,
Silver threads among the gold
Shine upon my brow today;
Life is fading fast away.
But, my darling, you will be
Always young and fair to me.

Outside the leaves rustled, the birds called and the crickets sang their unending epithalamia of summer nights, and on this tone-background the melody rose tenderly and lingeringly like a haunting perfume of pressed flowers. She smiled and lifted the locket to her face, whispering the words of the refrain:

Yes, my darling, you will be
Always young and fair to me!

The smile was still on her lips when she fell asleep, and the little locket still lay in her fingers.

Here is Seymour testimony of their worth.

Mrs. H. O. Williams, 20 E. Seventh St., Seymour, Ind., says: "My kidneys bothered me a great deal and my back pained me nearly all the time. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and I had a tired, nervous feeling. I looked about in vain for a remedy that would relieve me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They did all that I could possibly have expected them to do. In return for their good work, I have recommended them to many other people."

EXPOSITION READY, ON TIME.

Work Progressing Rapidly on Grounds and Buildings in San Francisco.

When on Feb. 20, 1915, the gates of the Panama-Pacific International exposition are thrown open to the world it will be no half finished affair, with working men hurrying from all sides to put the finishing touches on exhibits. This statement is made by Charles C. Moore, president of the exposition.

"All construction work is fully up to time," he said, "and the schedule calls for the completion of the exhibit palaces by July 1. One of them, the great machinery palace, is practically completed now; several more will be finished in April or May and will be ready for the installation of exhibits by July 1."

"Active work has begun in the concessions district on the many beautiful and elaborate structures to be created by concessionaires, and plans for the numerous state buildings and for the pavilions of the foreign nations are now being submitted and rapidly approved."

MEND MAN'S BROKEN BACK.

Surgeons Remove Part of Spine, and Patient Recovers Use of Legs.

By the removal of a section of the ninth dorsal vertebra surgeons believe that Max Schultz, who fell twenty feet at L. N. Y., and broke his back, will be a normal man in a few weeks.

The operation, performed in St. John's hospital, Long Island City, was considered a particularly difficult and most unusual one. A fragment of the vertebra pressed against the spinal cord, deadening the lower part of the body.

When the broken fragment was removed the cord resumed its functions and the patient was able to lift his legs. The surgeons said they believed he soon would be able to use his back as well as ever.

Aristocracy.

What subsists today by violence continues tomorrow by acquiescence and is perpetuated by tradition till at last the hoary abuse shakes the gray hairs of antiquity at us and gives itself out as the wisdom of ages. Thus the clearest dictates of reason are made to yield to a long succession of follies. And this is the foundation of the aristocratic system at the present day. Its stronghold, with all those not immediately interested in it, is the reverence of antiquity.—Edward Everett.

MARCH LION RAMPANT IN CITY OF NEW YORK

Railway Traffic and Wire Service Paralyzed.

New York, March 2.—With a six-inch fall of slush driven by a 72-mile gale, "spring" officially began Sunday. It fell with paralyzing effect on southern New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New England. The damage is inestimable at present. Guesses are that the property loss will be second only to that caused by the blizzard of 1888.

New York city was cut off as it has not been since the great storm of Washington's birthday 12 years ago. To the west, south and northwest, miles and miles of wires have been carried down. Some snapped under the weight of the ice and some were blown over poles similarly laden and blown over whole regiments at a time. From mid afternoon until late last night New York had no word by telegraph with Washington, Philadelphia, Buffalo or any other point within a fifty mile radius to the south and west.

Except in the city proper trolley cars and other forms of street traffic stopped altogether. Steam railroads quit too. Not a wheel moved out of this city on the Pennsylvania railroad after 7 o'clock. The Philadelphia and Reading discontinued service from Jersey City at two o'clock in the afternoon. The Erie suspended its suburban service.

The railroads had to do this because their signal systems were knocked to pieces by falling wires and poles. When trains were sent out the dispatchers could not "find" them so many telegraphs were silenced. Trains that did move were thirty minutes to five hours late.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The senate has sent to conference the postoffice measure, carrying $311,492,667.

A thief dressed in postal uniform robbed a Paris mail van of $200,000 when the guard's back was turned.

Governor Ralston has been chosen as temporary chairman for the Indiana Democratic convention, March 19.

The accounts of John Kennedy, New York state treasurer, who killed himself, were found to be entirely correct.

The new law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the state of Tennessee is now in effect.

A fire in the business section of St. Louis resulted in the loss of one fireman's life and damage to property of almost $500,000.

Gifford Pinchot has announced his candidacy for the Progressive nomination for United States senator to succeed Boies Penrose.

In twenty-seven of the forty-five police precincts in Chicago, there are 28,231 men out of work, according to reports made by officers.

March came in like a lion most everywhere east of the Rockies, and the result was blizzards, snow, high winds, interrupted wire services and delayed trains.

The Tennessee supreme court held invalid the section of the recently enacted state liquor shipping law limiting interstate shipments to one gallon for personal or family use.

A tribute to the work of Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama as Democratic leader in the house, President Wilson will give a dinner at the White House on March 9 for the majority leader.

Preliminary hearings on allegations that the United States Steel corporation has received illegal rebates from railroads during the last six years are being held by the interstate commerce commission.

TANGO AND HAREM HATS.

Hats for spring are to be little things, but gay, judging from "confections" shown privately at the annual convention of the National Association of Retail Milliners in Chicago.

The tango hat is made up principally in emerald green and gold yellow. On these hats are haunting high bows of bright ribbon. One of the spring hats is the "ear muff" hat, which has a pocket made of taffeta silk for the left ear, from which depends a huge jet ornament.

Woman's Beauty No Secret

It all lies in the care she bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ills peculiar to her sex. The flashing eye, the elastic step and the clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. The distressed expression, lassitude, headaches and mental depression are only the tell-tale symptoms. Women so troubled should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that simple remedy made from roots and herbs and restore their health to a normal condition.

FAVORS A "RURAL LIFE DAY."

Dr. Claxton Thinks Observance Should Become National Custom.

So far fundamental is the upbuilding of rural life, in the opinion of Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, that the observance in the schools of one day each year as "agriculture and rural life day" should become a national custom instead of being confined to a few states, as at present. "We can do without some of our anniversaries if need be," says Dr. Claxton, "to have time for this, the most fundamental of all. The children in our schools should be given an opportunity to pause in their regular work and consider the significance of agriculture and rural life, the worth and worthiness of tillage of the soil and the beauty and glory of simple and sane life in the open country."

Dr. Claxton points out that in several states "agriculture and rural life day" has already been introduced into the schools at the suggestion of the bureau of education. In other states exercises appropriate to the purpose are held in connection with Arbor day, Thanksgiving day or harvest home celebration. In order to aid in the proper observance of the day, under whatever name it may be celebrated, the bureau of education has issued a bulletin containing material that can be used by teachers and others in arranging an interesting program.

Current Magazines.

AMERICAN MAGAZINE.

In the March American Magazine Mary Antin, a wonderfully gifted young Russian Jewess, begins a new series of articles entitled "They Who Knock at Our Gates." The editors announce that this series is one of the most remarkable documents on immigration that they have ever seen. Mary Antin landed in America only a few years ago, an unknown little girl. Since then she has written one of the most remarkable books of our time.

The March number includes a broadside from the editors suggesting that Goethals and his Panama veterans be sent to Alaska, at the conclusion of their present work, to develop that great and practically untapped storehouse of national wealth. This suggestion is along the line of a report recently made by the Secretary of the Interior, in which he called attention to the tremendous undeveloped resources of Alaska.

WHY DON'T YOU ASK YOUR UNCLE SAM?

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio, Herbert Quick, the editor, says that we citizens pay our scientists and experts but that few of us use them as we might. There is not a worm, a bug, a blight, a disease, or a problem of the soil which is not studied by these hired men of ours and about which they are not anxious to tell us. Mr. Quick goes on in part as follows:

"At the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington almost any question will be answered by experts free of charge. In such cases not even a stamp is required for reply. They will examine diseased plants and tell what the remedy is, if there is one. Someone has said that the way to tell a toadstool from a mushroom is to eat it—if you die it's a toadstool; but these experts will save you the trouble of dying, and tell you in case of doubt, if you will send them the specimen.

"The number of things an observant farmer—especially a young one—wants to know is simply illimitable. And he can be sure that if there is an answer it will be sent to him. The country teacher who wants to ruralize her rural school might well ask for these problems to be brought to the school and sent thence to the experts. Such a policy will do much to bring the Government closer to the farms, and to make the pupils feel that it is really their government."

POPULAR MECHANICS.

The March number contains an unusually large number of illustrations, many of which are full-page photographs that tell the story of interesting events and of customs in various parts of the world. The continuation of the two series, "Curious Vehicles in Use the World Over" and "The Fireplaces of All the World," are particularly interesting, introducing the reader to such contrasts as that of the palanquin in which the high caste Hindu girl is carried through the streets of Calcutta and the dog carts of the Netherlands, as well as that of the Turkish merchant squatting before this samovar in a crooked street of Bagdad and the Navaho Indian cooking his meal over an open fire in a mountain valley. Every patriotic American will be interested in the view of the battleship "Delaware" cleared for action, with every movable object on the decks removed and stowed below, in that of the lofty fire-control platform of the dreadnought "North Dakota" during target practice, and of the tossing of the battleship "Vermont" in the storm which the vessel succeeded in riding out, but from which it emerged with one propeller shaft snapped in two.

The usual amount of good material, illustrated by sketches and diagrams, is included in the Shop Notes and Amateur Mechanics departments of the March Magazine.

In this number is begun a series of articles entitled "Electrical Heating Apparatus for the Home," by Arthur Moore, in which the installation of such apparatus is described and illustrated in the greatest detail.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE.

The fact that each number of Lippincott's Magazine is complete in itself, without any continued stories or series of stories, is doubtless one reason for this publication's long-continued popularity. You may begin subscribing in the mid-year or at any off date without losing a page. Nothing is continued but the entertainment, and it never flags.

The novelette in the March issue is "The Man in the Street," by Mary Inlay Taylor, author of "The Reaping," and other well-liked books. This is a theatrical story of a unique type, and shows how an ordinarily good and well-intentioned man can be turned into a rascal by force of circumstances. The heroine is an actress, the leading male character, a playwright.

SPECIAL PRIMARY IS LATEST PLAN

ty lessens his chance for the re-election.

The state committee appointed a special committee, composed of J. B. Areher, of Spencer, and James Randall, of Greencastle, to prepare plans for the primary and to take charge of it. All candidates must announce prior to March 14. The rules will be issued and mailed to the candidates.

An Indianapolis dispatch says that much bad feeling developed between the candidates at the meeting Saturday. Robertson claims that Underwood agreed that the winner in the Jackson county primary should have the entire delegation. By the action of the committee the winner will be required to have a majority of the entire vote cast. Robertson's friends say that he will carry Jackson county and will also get the majority of votes in Underwood's own county. Underwood's supporters declare that he will carry Jackson county, and that there is no doubt about his victory in Lawrence. Underwood is a brother-in-law of Governor Ralston.

"The Girl of My Dreams."

The authors of such famous successes as "Three Twins," "Bright Eyes" and "Madame Sherry" are responsible for the fascinating musical play "The Girl of My Dreams," which will be seen here Wednesday night at the Majestic theatre.

For two reasons this beautiful, clean, mirthful song comedy has been delighting packed houses throughout the country. It has never failed to elicit unqualified praise from both press and public and, rounded out by the wholesome experience of such a record before varying and captious audiences, "The Girl of My Dreams" now seeks to win those who are yearning for that girl in this city.
